What we've learnt over the years

Being comfortable with uncertainty close to inclusion is not inclusion

What does inclusion mean?

if you think youre doing it right youre doing it wrong Inclusion is a state of mind, a journey, not a program the power of inclusion has never been fully tapped. belonging and learning are essential

there is a lot of learning in the community that needs to happen to for inclusive post secondary to be successful

Community learning

Building connection is key

Building relationships

I am fairly new to this work, so I wouldn't say I have any amazing wisdom to share, but for me I have found that relationship building is so critical.

2020/2021 highlights

Our campus in Victoria was able to facilitate a co-op for one of our students in a department we had not been able to access before!

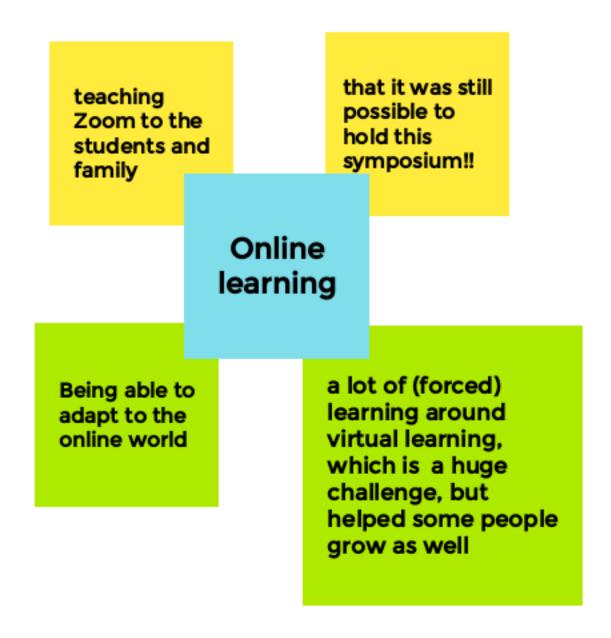

challenging and digging into myself, my own views and biases, being able to create a space to allow myself to grow and learn

Graduating university and getting hired by Steps Forward!

Personal wins!

Getting hired by Steps Forward:)

Gaining confidence in myself to be a good facilitator Streamlining processes to spend more time with the students

What next step do you want to take? Meet the Finally students I meeting all students face work for to face on in person campus Meeting students I recently joined the finally role as a facilitator welcome so I'm looking new forward to getting to know my students students and support them in their university carerr!!

If you had unlimited resources what would your dream be for the future of inclusive education?

Have Steps Forward be available at EVERY
campus
across Canada

I would try to implement inclusive education in my home country (Sri Lanka), where is a huge lack of support for people with developmental disabilities

Widespread awareness of inclusive learning initiatives, so that families know early on what opportunities exist for their kids

Thoughts on working with cooperative education programs?

There seems be lots of resistance in gaining access for supported students, especially when modifications are required, but it's been highly valued by students who have participated.

Its been challenging obtaining Co-Ops with the pandemic, but in the past it has been successful - looking at roles that hold value

How do you build community connections for employment?

Ensuring the connections being made are allies and roles being offered are of value

employers need to offer customized employment

Mutually beneficial roles

Where do you see potential for growth in the initiatives?

Expanded resources, so our waitlist can be shorter or non-existent accepting more students- right now I have 3 students. I would be great to see more students involved with the initiative What advice do you have for new provincial initiatives?
